

All About Foxes

Foxes are a part of the dog family. A male fox is called a dog, and a female fox is called a vixen. Baby foxes are called kits. They drink milk from their mothers when they are young. Foxes are mammals. This means they have warm blood and fur.

Foxes are nocturnal. They can also be seen during the day because they like to lay in the sun. Foxes have very good hearing. They can run up to 30 miles per hour!

Foxes eat meat. They will also eat berries off of bushes and look in garbage cans for food. They live with other foxes in dens in the country. You can also sometimes find them in cities.

1. What do baby foxes eat when they are young?

- ☐ worms
- ☐ milk
- ☐ meat
- ☐ food from the garbage

2. What is a female fox called?

- ☐ dog
- ☐ kit
- ☐ pup
- ☐ vixen

3. Where are two places that you could find a fox?

Answers

1. What do baby foxes eat when they are young?

- ☐ worms
- ☒ milk
- ☐ meat
- ☐ food from the garbage

2. What is a female fox called?

- ☐ dog
- ☐ kit
- ☐ pup
- ☒ vixen

3. Where are two places that you could find a fox?

You can find a fox in a den in the country or in the city.